  • In your experience, why do you think volunteers and/or girls choose to continue participating in Girl Scouts?

Membership Discussion
- Stephanie Foote discussed GSCO membership and nationwide membership.
- Ms. Foote now serves as GSCO’s Chief Program Officer.
- Nationwide membership is down approximately 3%. GSCO’s projected membership decline is 2.7%.
- GSCO provides the same quality programming for girls no matter where they are, in contrast to the past practices of some councils, which hold large single-day events.
- GSUSA’s new membership systems are requesting more data to enable evaluation of the quality of programming provided.
- GSCO is working with several organizations who want to do partnerships to provide GSCO programming to their clientele through outreach programs.
- GSCO will also be contacting councils who have large numbers of Gold Award girls (i.e. Los Angeles) to evaluate their award requirements in comparison with GSCO’s.
- To build membership, GSCO added 6 additional year-round recruiters, improved incentives for early-bird renewals, held more recruiting events, distributed more flyers in various locations, provided recruitment bonuses, and broadened how GSCO tells people about Girl Scouts.
- GSCO is working to maintain current membership levels, while assessing the ability to grow to 25,000 girl members to achieve “large council” status based on GSUSA’s definition.
- Ms. Dougherty will consider a facilitated Board retreat to expand on these discussion topics.
- Board members encouraged CEO to consider stretch goals and more investment to grow membership and programs. General discussion was that the council can afford thoughtful increases and the board would like to see growth rather than status quo.
